- a. average the thesis marks;
- b. re-weight an outlier grade by giving two grades a value of 40% in the final outcome and the outlier 20%; or
- c. in exceptional cases, recommend that a grade can be discarded, and the result determined by the averaging of the other two grades. This option should only be taken when a report is demonstrably biased or there is a conflict of interest, or a demonstrable failure to critically engage with the thesis.

(46) The RDSC will make recommendations on the award of the Vice-Chancellor's Commendation for PhD theses to the RRTC for approval.

(58) The thesis examination process will be conducted in accordance with clauses 23 - 25 of this Procedure. It is not expected that examiners of the revised thesis will recommend that new areas of research investigation should be undertaken by the student for the finalisation of the thesis.

(59) The examination outcome for a revised thesis will be determined in accordance with clauses 26 – 49 of this Procedure, with the following exceptions:

- a. in the case of MRes theses, the final thesis grade will be determined by the averaging of the grades provided by the original examiners. A maximum grade of 64% can be awarded for a thesis, which after re-examination, has been determined to meet the standard for the award of the degree. If the average grade is below 50%, then the final grade will be raised to 50% for a revised thesis which after examination, has been determined to meet the standard for the award of the degree.
- b. in all cases, students will not be provided with an examination outcome of revise and re-examination.

(60) A student who does not submit their R&R corrections report and revised thesis within the specified time period will be deemed to have not satisfied the requirements for the award of the degree.
