(26) Early assessment of whether or not there is a need for treatment and rehabilitation is important. Treatment and / or time off work as a result of a work-related injury may not be necessary in all cases.

(27) If rehabilitation is required, do the following:

- a. provide information on the return to work process and Worker's Compensation benefits to the staff member and their supervisor;
- b. determine the injured employee's return to work needs and prepare a Return to Work Plan, through discussion with the employee, their supervisor and nominated medical practitioner. Include the identification of Transitional (suitable) Duties as required;
- c. refer an injured employee's case to the University's rehabilitation provider, if required (e.g. if the employee is facing barriers in returning to work);
- d. liaise with the rehabilitation provider to ensure that they:
 - i. promote and support early and safe return to work of injured employees;

 - iv. act as an independent third party to facilitate negotiation and resolution of any issues;

Seek advice from the insurer about how best to proceed in situations where a dispute is unable to be resolved. This may include, but is not limited to, involving an accredited rehabilitation provider or injury management consultant.

(28) During the recovery process, ensure that participation in a Return to Work Plan will not, of itself, disadvantage an injured employee by:

- a. allowing an injured employee to access their sick leave until the insurer has accepted liability for the claim;
- b. allowing an employee to continue with higher duties or scheduled training, in so far as those activities are consistent with medical advice;

- c. ensuring any monies owed to an injured employee by Macquarie University are paid as soon as is practicable; and
- d. addressing any disagreements or issues with the Return to Work Plan as quickly as possible, so as not to hinder an injured employee's recovery.
